

Kennington to London Bridge

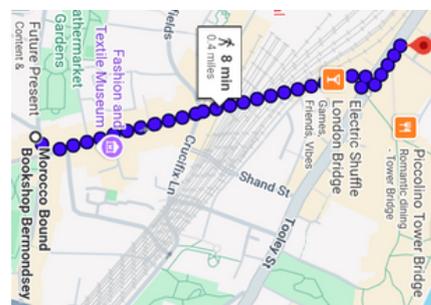

There are two different ways to do this route - walking, or with bus journeys in between. Either way takes in a really interesting range of bookshops, including not one but two bookshops which are also coffee shops!

Begin at Vanilla Black Coffee & Books (305 Kennington Rd, SE11 4LD) where you can get ready for your bookshop crawl with a delicious brunch or coffee and cake as well as browsing their collection of books! A short walk from here will bring you to Shalimar Books (38 Kennington Ln, SE11 4LS), the leading supplier of Indian books in the UK and a brilliant place to add new and exciting things to your possibility pile. Another 10 minute walk will bring you to one of London's newer indie bookshops, The Book Elephant (16 Sayer St, SE17 1FH), which also has a cafe and bar and where you might find you get a little something extra along with your purchases if you show them your bookshop crawl ID.

You can do the next bit as a longer (25 mins ish) walk, or as a slightly shorter bus journey (343 from Elephant Park to Unicorn Theatre and a walk). This is clearly a bookshop crawl for the hungry, because our next stop is also a cafe! Morocco Bound (1A Morocco St, SE1 3HB) is a tiny little space with the cosiest vibes and alongside its small but perfectly selected book picks, sells tea, coffee, croissants and cakes which are amazing.

A final short walk will bring you to brilliant indie The Riverside Bookshop (15 Hay's Galleria, Tooley St, SE1 2QN) where you can browse to your hearts content, and you'll be just around the corner from London Bridge Station when you're finished.
